

EAT OUT AWARDS - READERS CHOICE BEST NEW RESTAURANT

For years, no one fussed much with Indian food in Chicago. It wasn't reinvented, it wasn't fused, and it wasn't served with microgreens. But last year, reader's favorite Marigold opened in Uptown in a beautiful space and a tagline that sums it up "Indian.Authentic.Modern." If that sounds oxymoronic, consider these convincing dishes. Diver scallops dusted with garam masala, or lamb shank marinated in chilies and vinegar, and simmered in garlic.
